CRITICS' CHOICES

Jazz

Fourteen years ago, on Feb. 5, 1973, Jack Kleinsinger, then a 36-year-old Assistant Attorney General for the State of New York and an enthusiastic jazz fan, became a jazz impresario. Although he had never presented a concert of any kind before, he booked the tiny theater De Lys on Christopher Street for two nights, one month apart, to put on programs he called "Highlights in Jazz."

The fact that Mr. Kleinsinger intended to make "Highlights in Jazz" a series of concerts was implicit in his booking of two nights. He carried out that early intention so well that "Highlights in Jazz" will celebrate its 14th anniversary on Thursday at New York University's Loeb Auditorium, LaGuardia Place at Washington Square South, the series fourth home.

For the anniversary, three of the musicians who played at Mr. Kleinsinger's first concert will return — the tenor saxophonist Al Cohn, the guitarist Bucky Pizzarelli and the trumpeter Joe Newman. In addition, there will be a debut: The virtuoso trombonist Phil Wilson, a star of one of Woody Herman's greatest bands, the 1962-65 group that included Bill Chase, Sal Nistico, Nat Pierce and Jake Hanna, will make his first appearance at "Highlights." For the past 20 years, Mr. Wilson has been head of the trombone department at Berklee College in Boston where he also teaches arranging and composition.

The singer Carrie Smith, the bassist Major Holley and the drummer Oliver Jackson will also be part of the anniversary program along with Mr. Kleinsinger's customary "surprise guest."

ON JAZZ

SERIES' BUSINESS—The New York concert scene will, as usual, be enlivened by aral concert series' this winter and spring. First up is Sweet Basil's "Music is an Open Sky" festival which twice-a-year highlights some of the leading ensembles in what producer Horst Liepolt refers to as "today music." The festival starts this week and the line-up is: the String Trio of New York (1/20-21), Gerry Hemingway/Mark Helias/Ray Anderson (1/22), The Group—Ahmed Abdullah, Marion Brown, Billy Bang, Sirone, Andrew Cyrille (1/23-24), Roger Kellaway (1/25), the Gil Evans Orch. (1/26), the Frank Gordon Quintet (1/27), the Rova Sax Quartet (1/28), the Ray Anderson Quartet (1/29), Sam Rivers' "Rivbea" Orchestra (1/30-31), and "Wind and Thunder Presents Yoruba Proverbs" (2/1).

Jack Kleinsinger's "Highlights in Jazz" series, which presents what could best be called "yesterday music" at NYU, offers a 12th Anniversary Gala with Al Cohn, Joe Newman, Carrie Smith, and others (2/12), a Salute to Maxine Sullivan with, among others, Milt Hinton, Doc Cheatham, and the lady of honor (3/12), "Dynamic Duos" showcasing Dave McKenna/Daryl Sherman, Gene Bertoncini/Michael Moore, and tapdancers Chuck Green and Ralph Brown (4/16), and "Bebop Spoken Here," including James Moody, Red Rodney, Jimmy Knepper, and Sheila Jordan (5/21).
